DETAILED ACTION

The remarks filed 10/24/2005 are acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hergeth (DE 3702093).

Hergeth teaches an alpine ski (1) having a sidecut (silent) which has a radius smaller than 24 millimeters, the front (silent) and/or rear (silent) ends of which have a cavity opening longitudinally at said end, as the space between (2,3) is considered to be a cavity or "an unfilled space, per Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, which consists of two longitudinal elements (2, 3) side by side and joined at the underfoot zone by a platform (4) for mounting the binding.

With regards to the applicants claims regarding ratio Cav and the specific method of determining the ration and the lateral deflection of the ski during measurement, It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the length, application of force and degree of deflection of the ski as recited, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art, In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hergeth (DE 3702093) as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Ortwig (EP 1297869).

Hergeth does not teach the cavity of the alpine ski being filled with Elastic filling material.

Ortwig teaches a ski having first and second elements receiving elastic filling (33) for modify the board body as a function of the load or bending of the sliding board for a more comfortable ride.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to improve the deflection of the board taught by Hergeth via elastic addition material as taught by Ortwig for improving the smooth quality of the ride and minimizing shock received by the rider.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 10/24/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. With regards to applicant's arguments that the Hergeth reference does not disclose an "alpine ski" specifically, the referenced art is analogous art, and it has been held that a prior art reference must either be in the field of applicant's endeavor or, if not, then be reasonably pertinent to the particular problem with which the applicant was concerned, in order to be relied upon as a basis for rejection of the claimed invention. See In re Oetiker, 977 F.2d 1443, 24 USPQ2d 1443 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, let us refer to newly submitted reference Long (6,837,512) which provide evidence, that skis/snowboards of various styles provide equivalent function within reason and thus are considered analogous to one of ordinary skill in the art.

With regards to applicant's arguments that the sidecut radius of Hergeth would not have a radius smaller than 24 meters and the degree of flexibility between the applicant's invention and the reference varies, the Examiner repeats it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the depth of the sidecut to be less than 24 meters, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art, In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233, and the alpine ski configuration is clearly analogous to the Hergeth ski configuration within the skill of the art of "skiing".

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
